

responsible

There is a real push for designers to undertake socially responsible design that will contribute to improving people's lives. Using sustainable and ethical labour and materials can do this. Often, there can be financial support for projects that have a socially responsible focus, for example, the Design Against Crime Research Centre's 'Bike Off! Bike Parking Research' funded by Transport for London and 'Design Against Drug Related Retail Crime' funded by the Home office. {March 2012}
